Say No to Faithwashing: Boycott Muslim Leadership Initiative

© January 14, 2015  1  admin  Support for the Boycott  Muslim Leadership Initiative, Palestine

We as organizations, groups, and individuals committed to Palestinian self-determination call on the Muslim community in North America to eschew any and all participation, facilitation, or any form of legitimization for the Muslim Leadership Initiative of the Shalom Hartman Institute and its representatives or advocates.

Just a few months following Israel's latest assault on Gaza, which killed 2,200 Palestinians, and during this time when activists worldwide are working to strengthen campaigns to hold Israel accountable for its continued denial of Palestinian rights through tactics such as boycotts, divestment, and sanctions (BDS), it is distressing to learn that Muslim American chaplains, journalists, academics, and cultural workers are being approached and a small yet growing number are participating in an initiative that is a clear propagandist attempt by the Israeli organization Hartman to "influence the North American Muslim community in reassessing its preconceived notions of Judaism and Israel." MLI participants are ignoring Palestinian calls to isolate Israel and are taking part in a program sponsored by an organization involved in efforts to thwart BDS. (It should also be noted that Hartman is funded by one of a handful of major financiers of extreme Islamophobic groups in the United States.)

We reject the notion that this program is an interfaith one and that there is the need for Muslim Americans to engage with the state of Israel or institutions complicit in its war crimes.

We believe in the potential power of interfaith cooperation but only when it stands on the common values of freedom, justice, and equality such as the Interfaith Boycott Coalition launched in January 2013 or the more than 50 delegations Interfaith Peace Builders has led to Palestine. In regards to Muslim-Jewish relations, we reject outright both the notion that what is happening in Palestine is a "religious
We reject the notion that what is happening in Palestine is a "war on terror" and the conflation between Zionism, Israeli state policies, and Judaism. Jewish groups such as Jewish Voice for Peace and the International Jewish Anti-Zionist Network have been dedicated partners in the fight for Palestinian rights.

We strongly believe in the need for increased engagement by Muslim Americans with the issue of Palestine but only in ways that promote Palestinian liberation and comply with Palestinian demands.

We pledge to not give a platform to any MLI participant to speak about their experiences at our community centers, places of worship, and campuses and call on a complete boycott of MLI. We pledge to be in solidarity with the Palestinian struggle and to do so by honoring the BDS call. We pledge to engage with Palestinians in our communities and support delegations to Palestine that are meant to highlight the reality on the ground of occupation, apartheid, and ethnic cleansing.

Say No to Faithwashing: Boycott Muslim Leadership Initiative

January 14, 2015 admin Support for the BoycottMuslim Leadership Initiative, Palestine

We as organizations, groups, and individuals committed to Palestinian self-determination call on the Muslim community in North America to eschew any and all participation, facilitation, or any form of...
legitimization for the Muslim Leadership Initiative of the Shalom Hartman Institute and its representatives or advocates.

Just a few months following Israel’s latest assault on Gaza, which killed 2,200 Palestinians, and during this time when activists worldwide are working to strengthen campaigns to hold Israel accountable for its continued denial of Palestinian rights through tactics such as boycotts, divestment, and sanctions (BDS), it is distressing to learn that Muslim American chaplains, journalists, academics, and cultural workers are being approached and a small yet growing number are participating in an initiative that is a clear propaganda attempt by the Israeli organization Hartman to “influence the North American Muslim community in reassessing its preconceived notions of Judaism and Israel.” MLI participants are ignoring Palestinian calls to isolate Israel and are taking part in a program sponsored by an organization involved in efforts to thwart BDS. (It should also be noted that Hartman is funded by one of a handful of major financiers of extreme Islamophobic groups in the United States.)

We reject the notion that this program is an interfaith one and that there is the need for Muslim Americans to engage with the state of Israel or institutions complicit in its war crimes.

We believe in the potential power of interfaith cooperation but only when it stands on the common values of freedom, justice, and equality such as the Interfaith Boycott Coalition launched in January 2013 or the more than 50 delegations Interfaith Peace-Builders has led to Palestine. In regards to Muslim-Jewish relations, we reject outright both the notion that what is happening in Palestine is a “religious conflict” and the conflation between Zionism, Israeli state policies, and Judaism. Jewish groups such as Jewish Voice for Peace and the International Jewish Anti-Zionist Network have been dedicated partners in the fight for Palestinian rights.

We strongly believe in the need for increased engagement by Muslim Americans with the issue of Palestine but only in ways that promote Palestinian liberation and comply with Palestinian demands.

We pledge not to give a platform to any MLI participant to speak about their experiences at our community centers, places of worship, and campuses and call on a complete boycott of MLI. We pledge to be in solidarity with the Palestinian struggle and to do so by honoring the BDS call. We pledge to engage with Palestinians in our communities and support delegations to Palestine that are meant to highlight the reality on the ground of occupation, apartheid, and ethnic cleansing.
